

We are very grateful to Spiekermann team for helping us accomplish the goal of visiting the last country on our bucket list. The uniqueness of this adventure did not stop at being the first American group to visit Libya in many years. It was a great trip with excellent informative guides. Travel sometimes presents unexpected challenges, and this particular journey was no exception. The team at Spiekermann Travel demonstrated unwavering resilience in overcoming the numerous obstacles and last-minute changes to rules that emerged along the way.

It was an extraordinary coincidence that the group consisted of three individuals, each completing their own country goal simultaneously. This convergence of personal triumphs further reinforced the magic of this trip, setting its own kind of record and creating lifelong memories for everyone involved. We are truly delighted that this was our first adventure with Spiekermann Travel and will definitely go to them again for more adventures.
